

BRIDE OF A DAY GRIEVES FOR HUSBAND, VICTIM OF "BANKERS' MADNESS"

Frederick Oberhelman and Wife.

Kansas City, Mo., March 19.—Mrs. Frederick W. Oberhelman, bride of a day, is grieving today over the death of her husband, said to have been a victim of "banker's madness."

For five years Oberhelman was paying teller of the Security National bank here. Suddenly he disappeared. Bank officials said they missed $25,000.

In a week, Oberhelman returned with the money. C. S. Jobe, president of the bank, said it was a case of "banker's madness" from constant handling of money and Oberhelman was given his job again.
